DEATH BY ACCIDENT

CORONER'S JURY FINDS NO
BLAME APPLICABLE TO DRIV-
ER OF AUTO THAT KILLED
ALBERT ALEXANDER

After an exhaustive and careful examination into the circumstances surrounding the death of Albert Alexander, who was struck by an automobile, Thanksgiving day, on San Fernando road, near Vine street, the coroner's jury found that the death was accidental. Mr. Calvin Hartwell, the coroner, managed the case, and gave every opportunity for a full and exhaustive inquiry.

There was no doubt as to the cause of death. The body of the deceased exhibited plainly the marks of the fractures of the skull which were the immediate cause. Some of the witnesses were unable to speak English and E. F. Ortega was sworn in as interpreter. The testimony of the Saladanias tended to show that the party that was injured was returning home after a visit to a neighbor and that they were walking two and two on the road, about seven feet from where the curb would have been had there been a sidewalk. That brought them dangerously near the immediate path of autos. It was also shown that they never heard the noise of the automobiles that passed at the moment of the accident. Absorbed in conversation, they were unaware that three autos were passing at the moment when Albert Alexander was killed.

T. H. Tarr, the driver of the auto, testified that he was driving slowly and that at the point where the accident occurred an auto going toward the city and another coming from Los Angeles passed him. The glare of the two lights so blinded him, he stated, that he did not see the party on the road until he ran into them. The auto was being driven at a rate of about 18 miles an hour. The party was a family party consisting of Mr. Tarr's grandfather, a man of 86 years of age, who was anxious that his grandson should drive slowly, his father, who was sitting beside him, three of his sisters and a Miss Kellar. Tarr also testified that the moment he was aware that he had struck someone he stopped his auto and returned to the scene of the accident and assisted in getting the injured man conveyed to the hospital.

Miss Kellar also testified that she had not seen the party of people on the road and was unaware of what had happened until they turned back to aid. Other testimony was to similar effect.

After deliberation the jury, which consisted of J. W. Lawson, Mr. Francis, Mr. Eppinger, Mr. F. J. Reed, Mr. R. M. Jackson and J. A. St. Clair, brought in a verdict stating that the deceased met his death by being hit by an automobile, driven by T. H. Tarr. The verdict added that the death was accidental.

PRETTY DINNER EVENT

Ten covers were laid for the perfectly appointed six-course dinner given by Mrs. Arlene Hallihan, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Willett, 1010 Lomita avenue, Thursday, the affair being a Thanksgiving dinner, and stamped as one of the prettiest of the week's entertainments. One oval table was used, being exquisitely with a yellow motif of Perle d'Or rosebuds and fern fronds, accented with filmy tulle in blue.

Corsage bouquets marked places for Mrs. F. J. Willett, Mrs. M. Guilewer, Miss Iva Darby, Miss Ella Darby and the charming little hostess; single blossoms being placed for Mr. J. F. Willett, Mr. Louis Hayman, Mr. H. E. Johnson, Mr. Andrew Campbell and Mr. Harry Hyams.

Cards and music formed the evening's pleasure.

AT INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL

"Slaying Lions in Snow Time" is the subject chosen by Homer Van, chief probation officer of the Juvenile Court, Los Angeles, for his lecture to men and boys on Thursday evening, December 2, in the assembly hall of the intermediate school. An exceptionally good program has been arranged by the schools' musical director, Miss Weatherby, who has selected talent from among her many boy pupils.

The hospitality committee will have charge of the refreshments, to be served later in the evening.

VISITS BROTHER

Mr. Walter Barnard, instructor of mathematics and football coach in the Orange High School, is a guest in the home of his brother, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Barnard, at 1111 Chestnut street. Mr. Barnard arrived Thursday morning, departing again on Sunday.

SAFETY FROM FIRE

CHIEF A. H. LANKFORD DE-SCRIBES CONDITIONS AND APPARATUS IN NEIGH-BORING CITIES

"For some time past," said Fire Chief Lankford, "I have been visiting neighboring cities, with the purpose of getting to understand how they are prepared for insuring safety from fire in comparison with Glendale. There is little doubt that as far as equipment goes many of those cities are ahead of Glendale. There seems to be a unanimity of opinion in neighboring centers of population regarding the beneficial effects of a complete and effective fire equipment both as regards protection from such fires as may break out and also with regard to reduction of insurance rates.

"I found, for instance, the City of Long Beach engaged in improving its apparatus, of which it already has eight pieces. That city is installing Seagrave centrifugal pumps on three of its chemical and hose combinations. The immediate result of this improvement is added protection from fire, by reason of the ease with which such a pumping machine can extinguish any outbreak of flames.

"In other cities on the coast I found that experience had taught the authorities that the chemical and hose combination is by no means sufficient protection and that they are installing pumping apparatus or making plans for such installation. There can be little question of the efficiency and value of the pumping apparatus. In the case of Santa Monica, for instance, it was estimated that in six months the new pumping apparatus had saved that city more than $4000.

"Some of the small coast towns have been waking up recently to the necessity of fire protection. They have been fortunate enough to escape serious disaster up to this, it is true, but there can never be any theory of immunity built upon such a foundation. The only immunity that is valuable to a city is that which comes from having powerful and efficient apparatus at hand when fires break out.

"That cities like Glendale are fortunate enough to escape serious conflagrations such as sometimes strike other cities is to be attributed to the fact that the houses are sufficiently separated from each other to make of each fire a unit. Yet even that is by no means to be relied on. There might come a time when a combination of circumstances, such as a prolonged spell of hot weather and a gale of wind, might spread a solitary fire and give it the dimensions of a conflagration.

"There are also certain buildings, which must always be a source of anxiety to any fire chief as long as he is conscious that he has not at hand the means of fighting an outbreak of fire in such places. Imagine fire breaking out in some large building, constructed entirely of wood and of wood seasoned and dry from long years of baking in the sun. Picture to yourself such a building filled with people and then imagine a fire at night when everyone is asleep. Such a fire would be almost certainly attended with loss of life.

"Some of these days it is to be hoped Glendale will have full protection from fire. When that day arrives the city will be saved a great deal of expense and the price of the new apparatus will soon be made up. Then, also, the city authorities will be spared a great deal of anxiety that now exists on account of the possibilities of a big fire with no proper apparatus with which to fight it."

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—Henry Ford, maker of automobiles and peace advocate, managed to get an interview with Cardinal Gibbons here today. The cardinal was particularly cautious in his utterances on the subject of the war, as he appreciates the delicacy of the situation. He said, when asked as to what he thought of the "peace-at-any-price" policy of the auto magnate: "I admire Mr. Ford's optimism; but I see many rocks ahead of his peace plans."

SOVEREIGNS OF SONG

CONSTANTINO, ALLAMAND AND
STEVENSON CHARMED CHAR-ITY CONCERT AUDIENCE

Never did Glendale enjoy a musical treat of equal importance or greater charm than the splendid program so splendidly executed and so lavishly enlarged by Signor Florencio Constantino, F. Allamand, Mrs. Stevenson and their able accompanist, Mr. Manuel S. de Lara. The Palace Grand Theater was well filled with an appreciative audience, who enjoyed one of the finest offerings of song and music ever presented in this city.

Mr. de Lara, the accompanist, would himself have been an evening's entertainment. His opening piano piece, one of Wolkowski's famous marches, was executed with vigor and delicacy and his other contribution, a Chopin Polonaise, was equally pleasing. In his accompanying of the singers de Lara showed the greatest art in concealing his art and bringing out the beauties of the voices. The audience showed its appreciation of de Lara's excellent work.

Mr. F. Allamand, a young baritone of pleasing voice, which has been cultivated to excellent advantage, sang the prologue to "I Pagliacci" and "Dio Possente" from "Faust," with great expression and perfect technique. He was heartily applauded and repeated part of his songs as encores.

Mrs. Stevenson, a soprano, of very excellent style and wide experience, sang "Caro Nome," the great coloratura song from "Rigoletto" with wonderful power and exquisite art. Mrs. Stevenson's work was charming and she exhibited marvelous flexibility of voice and perfection of execution in her rendering of the difficult "Waltz Song" from "Romeo et Juliette."

While all these were excellent in their own separate spheres the great attraction of the evening was Constantino, who captured the audience by his charming good nature and his apparent desire to please. Constantino is really beyond criticism. His art is the very best that is to be heard. In the estimation of all critics he ranks equally with Caruso. His singing of the various airs such as "O Paradiso," and "Cielo e Mar" left nothing to be desired. In response to several encores Constantino sang two old favorites, "La Paloma" and "La Donna e Mobile," which gave the necessary lighter touch to the more elaborate music.

All the members of the Music section of the Tuesday Afternoon club were present and were represented in the reception of the artists by Mrs. E. W. Kinney, music curator; Mrs. H. W. West and Mrs. F. F. Balthis, and Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, former president of the club; and Mrs. E. H. Wilford, vice-president, and Mrs. Daniel Campbell. A substantial sum was received for the benefit of the Children's Hospital and the Maternity Cottage.

FOR WORLD'S WORK

Before long a large corps of medical missionaries and evangelical workers will be dispatched to China, India, Japan, South America and South Africa, by the Seventh-day Adventist church. The Adventist church is already firmly established in those lands; but the church feels that there is still much work to do there and that it can only be done by strengthening the corps now engaged in spreading the gospel. From Pacific Union College, Cal., and from the Missionary College at Washington, D. C., a large number of qualified workers will be sent. The church is now publishing various interesting and valuable works relating to the kingdom of God in many different languages and these publications will make the work of the missionaries easier than it would otherwise be.

IMPRESSIVE BAPTISMAL SERVICE

At the family gathering held at the home of the Rev. W. S. Blackburn, 235 Cedar street, Friday, Nov. 26, a most impressive baptismal service was dispensed by Mr. Blackburn. After dinner Mrs. Paul P. Blackburn, wife of Lieut. Blackburn of the U. S. S. Kansas, grandson of the Rev. W. S. Blackburn, presented her three children to their great-grandfather for baptism. The Rev. Mr. Blackburn performed the same rite for the father of the three children some thirty years ago. The little grandchildren were baptized with the following names: Paul Pritchard, Elinor Carey and John Thomas. They are aged seven, five and three respectively. Mrs. Blackburn and the children leave Sunday night for Philadelphia, where Lieut. Blackburn is stationed at present.

CURRENT TOPICS

GARDEN LOVERS' PLANS

Quite a deal of good has resulted to the Garden Society of Glendale from the lecture, by Mr. Maxwell, so successfully staged last week. The large number of people who were brought into contact with the work and plans of the Garden Society are likely now to take an interest in the doings of this active local organization.

At the next regular meeting of the Glendale Garden Society, a new feature will be introduced. From 7:30 to 8 o'clock p. m. a social half hour will be inaugurated. Members and friends are invited to come at this hour and get acquainted. The president, Mrs. Nanno Woods, and other officials will make it their business to see that everybody becomes acquainted with everybody else. Individual gardens can be talked over; experiences compared; exchanges of plants and seeds arranged amongst each other. Thus a spirit of sociability, of friendly interest, will be stimulated, and the Garden Society prove a source of mutual help and pleasure. At 8 o'clock sharp the regular meeting will be held.

Visitors in our city, and newly-arrived residents, are cordially invited to attend the Garden Society meetings, which are held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms on the first Thursday evening of each month. Here pleasant acquaintances can be made, congenial friendships will ensue. Several people have already confided to the president that they are joining the society because they are lonesome and would be glad to know other folks. Let us who are blessed with many friends hold out a hand of welcome to those who feel lonesome. Let those who are lonesome join our ranks, and find amongst the members of the Garden Society not only congenial friends, but also opportunities for enriching the lives of others, and a sphere for civic usefulness.

Through the Garden Society the Glendale Grammar Schools are being supplied with annual larkspur plants. The offer of a dozen larkspur plants free to all joining the Garden Society continues effective this week only; don't fail to avail yourselves of this offer. Headquarters at 1111 W. Broadway.

Those interested in nature, in plant-life, in the doings of the Garden Society, will find at least half a column devoted twice a week to the announcements and pleasant chit-chat of the society in the pages of the Glendale Evening News. The president wishes to thank most heartily the editor of the Glendale Evening News for the valuable space so cheerfully given to the Garden Society. It means much to be able to circulate the gardening items so thoroughly amongst the residents of Glendale, to have at one's disposal such an efficient method of communication with the members of the society. A careful perusal of the columns of the paper will amply repay every member and friend of the Glendale Garden Society.

WILKINSON AND McCURE

One of the most recent enterprises in Glendale community is a little monthly poultry magazine christened "Pacific Coast Breeders' and Fanciers' Review," edited and published by Fred Wilkinson and E. Mr. McCure is well known to the residents of Glendale, having published papers in Glendale, Burbank and several other Southern California cities. For several months last summer he edited and published the Plain Dealer.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bannock and daughter Iris, with Miss Agnes Frostick, sister of Mrs. Bannock, motored to Long Beach on Thursday, returning by way of Los Angeles and enjoyed Thanksgiving dinner at the home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Laird.

CHARITY BALL

The next event to which Glendale is looking forward is the charity ball, to be held Thursday evening at Masonic Temple, when the Knights Templar entertain. Judging from the sale of tickets, there promises to be a large attendance of those who enjoy an affair of this kind and who also wish to assist the Knights Templar in playing Santa Claus, as the proceeds of this ball are to be used in purchasing Christmas toys.

DEVELOPMENT OF STEAM RAILROADS

So rapid has been the development of the steam railroad and so accustomed is the present generation to being whirled from one part of the country to another with a speed that at one time would have been considered suicidal, that it is difficult for most people to realize that 1915 is the centenary of the completion of the first locomotive to be operated on a railroad by direct transmission of power to the driving wheels, as locomotives are driven today. One hundred years is not a very long time to bridge the chasm between the first tiny locomotive and the great Moguls that move with so majestic a motion across the continent.

One hundred years ago George Stephenson, father of the locomotive, finished the Billy No. 1 and put it into operation at the Kinningworth colliery, near Newcastle, England, where it continued in service for more than forty years. That early, small locomotive was the direct ancestor of all the illustrious line of locomotives which during the last century have brought civilization, commerce and agriculture to formerly uninhabited spaces of the earth.

It is told of the first Stephenson locomotive that it had as many opponents as any other great invention in the days of one hundred years ago. Men who should have known better asserted that the fumes from the locomotive would kill vegetation and that the sparks from the smoke-stack would set fire to the surrounding grain fields and forests. They also averred that the terrific pace at which the train would travel, say 20 to 30 miles an hour would simply paralyze the lungs of the passengers and that they would die.

Ignorance and prejudice joined with ancient interests to oppose the new invention and a crowd went out to see its failure; but when the first real locomotive made the first successful run ridicule was changed into wonder and amazement. Immediately after this great achievement other inventors in this field left the work of engine exploitation largely to Stephenson and his son Robert. In a competition for a prize of $2500 offered for a thoroughly practical train and engine that would carry passengers Stephenson's "Rocket" in competition with four other locomotives won the prize. The Rocket weighed about four and a half tons and on trial attained a speed of 29 miles an hour.

Though completed in the year 1815 it was not until the year 1829 that the first locomotive came to America. It was brought over from England and put into operation by Horatio Allen, who was first president of the New York and Erie railroad. Peter Cooper was the first American to design a locomotive to be built in the United States. It weighed only a ton and was run once or twice on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in 1830 when that road was in process of construction.

Various American locomotives followed one of them, the DeWitt Clinton attaining the speed of 40 miles an hour, a record for that generation.

Since that time the development of the American railroads has been marvelous. The DeWitt Clinton made its great run in 1831, seventy-four years ago. Now the whole land is covered with a network of rails. The great transcontinental lines have done more to develop the country, perhaps, than any other single power and their day of usefulness is now at its height. The world owes much of its present development, culture and wealth to the little "Rocket" which so stirred the risibility and fears of the people of England. It is fitting that Stephenson's name should be remembered during this centenary year.

VALUE OF BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT

Any movement that proposes to take boys from the pursuit of idleness and mischief and give them an object in their play hours is worthy of the highest commendation. Therefore it is not enough to turn away from the boy scout movement and dismiss it with the false criticism that it is a military movement. The boy scouts have met with much opposition from people who have never examined the movement and are not aware of what it represents.

One of the first movements of this nature was begun in Scotland, about forty years ago, when a church in Glasgow organized the "Boys' Brigade." The brigade had a great vogue in Scotland, nearly every parish instituting a company; and at a big brigade drill of the boys in the year 1881 about 75,000 boys were gathered together. Prominent military men took great interest in the brigade. The boys had a uniform and were taught regular military drill and military exercises. The brigade was popular and did much to teach boys respect for their elders and to give them those very principles which the boy scouts strive to inculcate.

About the time the Boer war ended Gen. Baden-Powell, himself a famous scout, and equally famous for his valiant and successful defense of the little open town of Mafeking with 700 citizen soldiers whom he trained against a force of 5000 Boers, be thought himself of training boys in the duties of scouts and organizing them into an order. This he did with great success and the Boy Scout movement spread all over the world.

There is nothing in the movement that savors of "militarism." Defense, not aggression; aid not injury, are the principles of the order. Those who have been opposed to it as long as they did not come in contact with the movement have altered their opinion the moment they have seen it in operation. The Boy Scouts of America is developing every day more and more the educational features of the scout program. This program has been highly praised by the United States commissioner of education and other eminent men.

Testimony comes from all sides as to the value of the training thus given the boys. Wherever the boy scouts have had their encampments they have won golden opinions from all manner of people. It has been found that the boy scouts are manly, respectful and courteous at all times.

It is really wonderful to learn that 500 boys could be in camp close to a town and yet that never a single complaint of bad conduct was made concerning them; but that, on the contrary, the people testified that the presence of the scouts was beneficial and before long worked for the establishment of a company of scouts in their own town.

Glendale has a company of boy scouts. It is true it is not large but it is growing. The boys recently had a camp out in Verdugo canyon and already reports state that there is visible much improvement in the manner and bearing of the boys. The movement here deserves encouragement and more boys should join it.

AT THE CHURCHES

AT THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

As a part of the evening service Dr. Willisford will discuss an article which recently appeared in one of the popular magazines, in which the author tells "How I Tried to Break Into the Church" and failed. Several members of the Woman's Missionary Society will present a Mission Playlet. Those taking part will appear in costume and are, Mrs. W. D. McRae, Mrs. I. McReynolds, Mrs. E. C. Schuyler, Mrs. H. V. Everly, Mrs. E. O. Von Oven and Mrs. E. H. Willisford.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH

"Capitulation of the World's Greatest Skeptic." Does that interest you? When a big man retracts all he has said and makes a right-about face of his life there must be some adequate reason for such radical action. The infidelity of a little two-by-four fellow does not shake the world. A stoical philosophy of indifference to the facts of life does not mean anything. Facts and not fiction are the only things worth while in the religious life. Hear the sermon on the above theme at 7:30 on Sunday evening.

At 11 a. m. the pastor will speak on "The Gate of God." A striking subject with a striking interpretation of vital Scripture. Spiritual message for spiritually minded people. Church location, Third street and Dayton Court.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Glendale Presbyterian Church was invited by the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor and the Methodist Epworth League of Tropic to meet with them at their annual Sunrise Thanksgiving service on the top of Tropic Hill.

Shortly after six o'clock about forty young people assembled there to lift their hearts and voices in praise and thanksgiving to God, "the giver of every good and perfect gift." The meeting, led by Mr. E. D. Stafford, president of the Glendale C. E., was an inspiring, joyous service. The glory of the rising sun illuminating valley and hills with its splendor, together with the inspiration of prayers and hymns, made an impression on the company of worshippers that will not soon be forgotten. The Tropic young people have kept up this beautiful custom for a number of years.

MERRY RIMES OF A JUNIOR

'Tis said the 1916 class Cared much to win the prize, But Juniors bold, so I am told, Mused up those Seniors wise; Tom, sometimes called the Senior class,

Fell down and scored a fumble. The red and white Ne'er got a bite; We'd think they'd take a tumble.

Frank Bridgeford and Joe Maier bold Went out for some debatin', But Lincoln High took all the pie, While Glendale hearts were quakin'.

The points, they say, Were number A; The judges were much taken.

Two lads from La Canada town With Darwin, our instructor, Went to a beach that you can reach By car with a conductor. When back they came, they had won fame,

Each proved a mighty hitter. They said they won Because 'twas fun, And who would be a quitter?

Sir Edward Seay thought he should be Executive committee, The voters thought he'd better not, Such hunger is not pretty,

Bill Bodie's not a proper cop, But just why, is a mystery, Wood Wilson smote A heavy vote, And Barney said, "Twas hist'ry."

The Orpheum was lots of fun 'Till Howe put wise our mother; The Ford gave way, we had to pay A nickel for another.

The Oral class did all but pass, Perhaps they will next summer; Somehow we fear That very near Looms an exam, a hummer.

The Seniors say their Stylin' book This year will be surpassing; We hope 'twill be just full of glee And limericks and laughing.

Our naughty card had many a blot, And red was quite in vogue, But you shall see Not e'en a three

When we next bring home the rogue. K. B.

AT THE CHURCHES

REV. A. B. DE ROOS, CONVERTED HOLLAND JEW, AND MRS. BOB FITZSIMMONS AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Three unique services are planned for the local Baptist Church Sunday. Rev. Troy, pastor in charge, will deliver his lecture on the contents of the Bible at the morning service. A model will be used. All who attend should receive a very definite idea of the entire contents of the divine library. This lecture has been delivered many times in various sections of the United States.

At the hour of 3 in the afternoon a union service, to which all denominations and creeds are invited, especially the friends of the seventh day Adventist church and the Hebrews, will be held in the meeting house of the Baptist Church, to listen to the thrilling story of the conversion of Baron De Roos, a Holland Jew. Twenty years ago Rev. De Roos was baptized by Russell Conwell of Philadelphia, since which time he has developed into one of the world's most effective preachers of the gospel. The local pastors will not neglect to make announcement of this service. Adolph Lowinsky, converted violinist, will appear at the afternoon service as well as the other services of the day.

The White Cross Society will be represented at the evening service. Mrs. Bob Fitzsimmons, whose recent conversion and baptism at the Broadway Christian Church delighted the hearts of all true believers, will give her remarkable testimony at the evening service. Dr. Hargrave MacNeil and Rev. Troy will also speak, assisted by White Cross nurses. The service is announced for 7:30. Six hundred free seats. First come first served.

THE MYSTERY MAN

Immersed in a seventy-five gallon milk can of water, the cover of which is secured by padlocks attached to the 1-gs. Hardeen, the mysterious master of escape who comes to cages next week, will release himself or drown. There is no alternative. The can, the man, the water are all minutely inspected by a volunteer committee. When the water is poured from a large big wash-tubs into the milk can, the man gets into the can and the cover is padlocked upon it. This is one of the greatest sensations ever presented on the stage, and seems capable of no rational explanation. Yet the audience may spare its thrills, for Hardeen survives to perform the same mysterious escape at the next performance. This is merely one of many thrillers that Hardeen has devised since his last appearance here at Pantages.

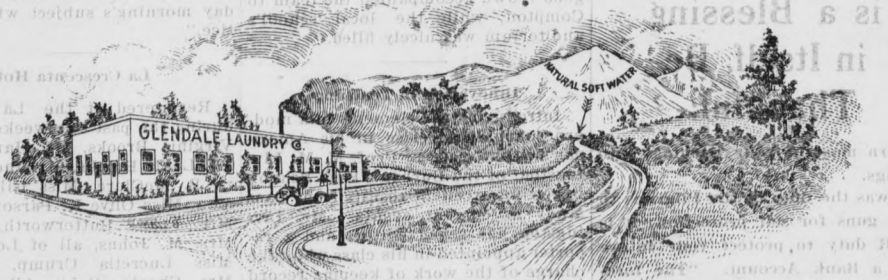

Alexander Patty, the man who walks on his head, is also to be seen at Pantages for the week starting November 29. Mabel Johnston, the woman ventriloquist, is a novelty feature of the program. The Longworths, man and woman, offer a bit of melody and mirth.

Howard and Fields bring their dining car minstrels, a combination that has all the tang of old-time minstrelsy, and Irene West's Hawaiians will close the show. The Hawaiian Troupe boasts that it is the only organization of the kind in which all the performers are really of Hawaiian birth. The act is gorgeously staged, and presents two Hula dancers who really do the Hawaiian steps and movements.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Chamber of Commerce, held in the Auxiliary rooms Tuesday afternoon, was well attended.

The W. C. T. U. held their regular meeting at the M. E. church Wednesday of last week. The meeting was well attended and plans were made for their annual Christmas box, to be sent to the Old Ladies Home in Highland Park. Each member is to make at least one breakfast cap for the box.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Taylor spent last week in San Diego visiting at the home of O. J. Stough, also seeing the exposition.

Thursday evening of last week Mrs. Susan E. Martins passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs.

Crane, on Palm avenue. Mrs. Martins, who has made her home with her daughter for some time, has been sick for several months. At the time of her death she was past 78 years of age. Four children are left, Mrs. L. Crane, Chas. Thompson, Geo. Dewey and Frank Dewey, all of Burbank. High School Notes

Burbank High School's basketball team met the Glendale five on the former's diamond Wednesday afternoon. Last Saturday the Burbank boys were badly beaten by the Hollywood High quintet by the score of 31-10. However, these games are just practice and Principal Livingston has high hopes for a league championship.

Burbank was very successful last Friday night in its debates with Compton and Alhambra. Both were won by the local school. Here, Burbank's speakers ranked first and second, while at Compton first and third in the estimates of the judges. This debate being but one of the preliminaries, does not show exactly where Burbank will stand in the final outcome, yet a double victory proves that Burbank has the material. A good crowd accompanied the team to Compton, while the local school's auditorium was nicely filled.

Innovation in Teaching

Introducing the elements of a modern journalistic class in his American history classes, Prof. M. M. Livingston, of the Burbank High School, is getting excellent results from class study in current events. Mr. Livingston has seven editors and a reporter appointed in his class who take charge of the work of keeping record of important events in their departments, namely, international affairs, national affairs, state and local doings, science and invention, sporting, music and art, and literature. The result of the year's study by the class is a neatly bound loose leaf book which records only the important events. This method of study takes but one period a week and each year the class leaves the modern history of the year.

NEW TABLE OILCLOTH

An innovation in table oilcloth has just appeared on the counters of the shops. On one side it is the familiar glazed white, but on its reverse side it has a printed design of chrysanthemums in soft natural coloring. After the day's work is done the maid may turn the cloth over and have a pretty table cover for evening use when she sits down to a little sewing or to the entertainment of her friends. The cloth is the usual width, and costs only a few cents more than the plain white oilcloth.

TROPICO

Glendale had its circus Tuesday, and Tropicco, not to be outdone by its sister city, had its circus Tuesday night, but unlike Glendale, with its traveling performers, had its own home talent, with a goodly portion of Glendale as chief performers. Some of them, however, proved good travelers, for just at the close they traveled up the San Fernando boulevard at such a high rate of speed as to break all records. Dr. Samuel A. Pollock, who is a prominent citizen of Tropicco as well as a prominent Elk, a member of Glendale Lodge No. 1289, has been most carefully watching the growth of a fine young porker, to which he gave the euphonious name of Steve, with visions of roast pork as a happy finale to all of his care and good feeding. Stephen Packer, exalted ruler of Glendale lodge, with a score of other brother Elks, have also been watching with longing eyes and hungry palates the progress of that fine young porker, Steve. The fatal hour arrived Tuesday evening, when doctor almost lost his pig. Steve Packer and the herd of hungry Elks lost a fine roast pig dinner and Steve the pig lost an automobile ride, all too, just because the piggy squealed.

It all happened this way. Brother Packer, with several brother Elks, all officials, too, motored to Dr. Pollock's home on West Park avenue, and summoned the genial doctor to the front lawn. While engaging him in a very earnest discussion relative to the advisability of Tropicco and Glendale voting wet or dry, another machine-load of Elks slipped up San Fernando boulevard. Several very quietly pussy-footed to the pig sty, where doctor's fattened porker lay fast asleep. Slipping a large four-inch rope measuring over 100 feet long around this pig it was lifted from its enclosure and was led to within fifty feet of the waiting machine when it began squealing.

Dr. Pollock had reached the climax of his animated prohibition speech, when he heard his pigship's cry of alarm. Rushing away to ascertain the cause of the squeal, he saw two stalwart men running at a 2:30 pace towards the highway, while a third Elk was tugging away at the rope and the pig. Doc seized the man and was preparing to deal a few good blows with his strong right arm when he cried, "O, Doc, just give me a chance!" Then it dawned on the doctor that a joke was being perpetrated on him, but not before all of the neighborhood was aroused and Mrs. Pollock was telephoning for the Tropicco police. The frightened Elk who was making away with his pigship finally told Dr. Pollock to call up Chief Herald of Glendale and all would be explained. Doc told his brother Elk that the penalty for endeavoring to purloin his porker so surreptitiously was to lead it back to the pigsty and life it over into its warm bed, from which it had been so rudely taken. Then rose bushes and other shrubbery in the vicinity of this scene began moving and several Elks emerged and assisted in returning Steve, the piggy, to its pen.

What became of Brother Packer and his machine load of brother Elks? Oh, the last seen he was speeding up San Fernando boulevard at 60 miles per hour, with visions of roast pork and sweet potatoes fading away in the distance. Midst a wealth of bright-hued flowers and surrounded by a number of her schoolmates, Miss Dorothy Danner very charmingly celebrated her twelfth birthday anniversary at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Danner, on Gardena avenue, Wednesday afternoon. Pink and white were very artistically utilized in the dainty color scheme. The afternoon was pleasantly passed in music and games. The table at which a dainty luncheon was served by Mrs. Danner, Mrs. Charles Bruck and Miss Florence Chadwick, was centered with a huge birthday cake, which was surmounted by twelve pink candles. Those who were hidden to assist Miss Dorothy in celebrating her entrance into her teens were Misses Helen Hartwig, Dorothy Carmack, Jessie Dutton, Elsa Roeder; Masters Walter Sullivan, Herbert Bruck, Lyle Martin, Don Danner and Golburn Danner.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Danner were host and hostess at a family reunion dinner, Thursday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Martin and family, Mrs. Mary Chadwick and Miss Florence Chadwick were their guests. The tempting menu was all the more delectable from the fact that it was enjoyed while many happy reminiscences of the three families were discussed and pleasant memories revived of days long since past, which were spent in Kansas.

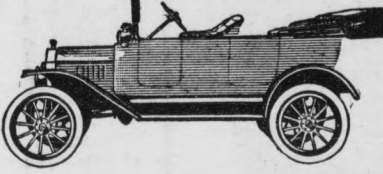

There were many dinner parties given in Tropicco Thursday, commemorating the glad Thanksgiving, where joy and happiness reigned supreme, but of the many given and the many enjoyed there was none any happier than the one at which Mr. and Mrs. Joseph V. Griffin presided in their home on Acacia avenue. The Griffin home was prettily decorated in autumn flowers and vari-colored autumn leaves. The table was centered with a large basket carved from a huge pumpkin, whose golden hue, blended very harmoniously with its contents, which consisted of every variety of fruit and tree grown in Southern California, mingled with the bright colored autumn leaves. Seated with Mr. and Mrs. Griffin and son, Jim Griffin, were Major J. J. Weller, father of Mrs. Griffin, and her brother and his family, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Weller, and daughters Miss Emma Lee, Miss Melba and Miss Lena Weller, Mr. and Mrs. Weller
